Three years ago I was living by my wits in the city of St. Paul. Perhaps I gambled some; perhaps you would call it swindling. At all events there was a chap out there, a rich, young scapegrace, who loved to be fleeced, and no one loved to fleece him better than Dick. One day he came to me looking very miserable.

Oh, then, from her creaking couch she sprung, 'Dick,' said he, Tre lost my watch -a poor old turnin; but the old woman gave it to me just before she died, and I wouldn't lost it for a farm. I made some inquiries and soon found out that the watch had gone into the Virginia backwoods settlement. How I found out is nothing to you .-I told Tom about it.
